Letter of Recommendation

Dear Alyssa,

With pleasure, I would like to confirm that you have started your employment at Heel Inc. in 1997 as a Pharmaceutical Sales Representative. Subsequently, you have worked your way up into higher positions at Heel Inc. I joined Heel Inc. in March 2002 as Chief Executive Officer and was therefore in the position to observe your extraordinary contribution to the expansion of Heel Inc.'s business activities.

I have very much appreciated your commitment, dedication and extraordinary contribution to fulfill your tasks, goals and objectives. You have fully identified yourself with each project and through your positive attitude towards difficult and complex tasks and problems; you were able with great personal engagement to turn things to a successful outcome. The expansion of business activities that you initiated required a great deal of responsibility, courage, knowledge and detailed skill set in the areas of Sales and Marketing. With a strong grasp of organizational structure and development, excellent team building skills and great leadership, you managed successfully many different projects with all my respect.

As I have learned from various personal discussions with co-workers, employees, speakers and customers you have been responsible for their loyalty to the company. Your management style and visionary thinking was very well accepted and followed. Your social and task oriented competence were well known and an excellent example in the company.

I personally enjoyed working with you. It was important to me that I could always count on your support and reliability.

This letter of recommendation has been prepared today because there was no reason to do it before.

I remain with best personal wishes for your future endeavors.

Egon A. Landgraf
